IN ERROR. - The Sentinel stated yesterds shall it is known. The southers stated yearering that W. If. Thomas had been removed from the Marshal's office, and Mr. Henry of Iowa County, appointed beyong in his stead. We understand that Mr. Thomas will be retained, and that Mr. Henry takes the place of City Departy, rice D. G. Reed removed. Such is the report, and we hope it is true, so far at least as Mr Thomas is concerned. "News of yesteriday.

We rather think that the News, not the Sentinel, is "slightly in error." As we understand it, Mr. Thomas and Mr. Rezu, (who were excellent officers) have both got their "walking papers," and Mr. Hanay takes their place. It is rather remarkable that not a man could be found, in the city brate St. Andrew's day-if any one will tell and county of Milwaukee, (giving 3,500 De. us when that is. mocratic majority,) to fill the post of Deputy Marshal here; but that it was necessary to import a gentleman from Iowa County, which has just given 155 Republican majority .--However, the ways of our Democratic National Administration are past finding out.

NEW YORK, -Some over-zealous Democrats having expressed a doubt about Gov. Sew-ABD's carrying New York, in the Presidential contest of 1860, the Albany Evening of Journal thus offers them an opportunity to "back their opinions:"

We offer to the opponents of the Republican Party—Democratic or Hybrid—that if Gov, Seward should be the nominee of the Republican National Convention, for President, a wager of $5,000 that he will carry the State, of $1,000 that he will obtain 1,000 majority, $1,000 that he will obtain 2,000 majority, and so on up to 20,000-making,

THE ICE-BOAT PROJECT .- Mr. WIERD'S readers are already pretty well posted, has not by any means been abandoned. The friends of the enterprise are quite sanguine of success, and it is stated that Mr. Wignd to be delivered before the Young Men's Ashas all things in readiness at Prairie du Chien to launch his boat on the first closing of the Mississippi river. If successful, the boat is to make semi-weekly trips between St. Paul and Prairie du Chien. The engine is strong enough to draw sixteen loaded cars on the ice, and a St. Paul paper says that "it's proprietors are ready to enter into contracts for carrying down all the grain that can be gathered at different points on the

A REVOLTING OUTRAGE .- The Chicago papers contain an account of a shameful outrage committed on the person of a young woman, lately bereft by death of her husband, mother and relatives, and left with a helpless babe and an almost imbecile brother. She arrived in Chicago last Saturday on her way to New York, when two young men of that city succeeded in entrapping her in an obscure hotel and then committing a revolting outrage upon her. The young men, whose names are CHARLES CADY and SAMUEL AR-NOLD, have both been held in the sum of $5,000, each to answer at the next term of STEAM WAGON .- The Dunleith Advertiser says there is in that place awaiting shipment up the river, a steam wagon, adapted to running on common roads. Its inventor, JOHN A. REED, of New York city, is with it. He says it will travel any common road at the rate of eight or ten miles an hour, and move up an ascent of a thousand feet to the mile easily. That last is certainly pretty steep. The wagon was built at Newark, N. J., and is intended to run between St. Paul and Pembins.

KANSAS TERRITORIAL LEGISLATURE .-The Leavenworth Times of the 17th says that returns official and reported from the whole Territory, give PARROTT (Rep.) 2,200 majority for Delegate in Congress. A poll was opened in Denver City, and PARROTT received 16 majority in the precinct. PROF. Low's writes to the New York papers that his proposed voyage across the Atlantic, in the great balloon, the City of New York is temporarily postponed.

THE CITY.

MILWAUKEE AND HER CREDITORS -The in this morning's Sentinel, deserves the serious attention of all who are interested in the prosperity and mindful of the good name of our city. Our readers, we are sure, will all agree with the writer, that the public faith of Milwaukee must be kept inviolate, and that early and ample provision should be made to meet every outstanding liability .--Arrival and Departure of Ballroad Trains, and The idea of repudiating our just obligations is one that finds no favor with the people of this city, or State.

A LETTER FROM MR. GEORGE VANDERnorr .- The letter which we publish this morning from Mr. GRORGE VANDERHOFF, exculpates that gentleman from the charge of having violated his engagement with the Young Men's Association of this city. It is apparent that his failure to appear here, as announced, on Tuesday of last week, is attributable to the fact that he did not receive the letter from the Chairman of the Lecture Committee, notifying him of the appointment for that evening.

THE NEW CITY HALL .- Now that the Common Council have decided on fitting up Market Hall for the use of the city, we presume the work will be commenced immediately.-The front is to be taken down and put up anew, with a tasty porch on Market Square, and a handsome cupols on top, with clock, faces on the four sides. The first floor will be cut up into rooms for the Mayor and city icers, and on the second floor a hall 40x80 th arched ceilings, will be devoted to the of the Common Council. Vaults will o be added, in which the archives of the may be preserved both from fire, and as d. West would say, any encroachments the Lake. The six-penny fungi that now rk, &c., &c., will be shaveled away and a ess plot and from railing thrown about the ace when it begins to assume the new digy of a public building.

ACCIDENT AT YOUNG'S NEW BUILDING .-Yesterday afternoon the centre arch under the main Halt in Young's new-block gave way | Chief of Police shall have the right to appoint, | be taken of them in any way, shape or manfrom some imperfection in the wooden "centre" or frame work, and fell to the ground below, a distance of fourteen feet, slightly injuring R. Guerin, Geo. McIntosu, Henny BAIR, - BRITCHARD, JOHN BROWN and city." WM. SPELLIN, who were at work upon it at the time.

It is the opinion of good judges that the accident was owing entirely to the inefficient manner in which the centres were put up .-The building, and especially this part of its is being constructed with a view to the greatest strength. The floor of the main Hall does not rest upon the arches solely, but is supparted by girders resting upon the heavy longitudinal walls and upon unusually heavy iron columns. The damage sustained will probably not exceed a hundred dollars, and will delay the work but a few days.

WHAT WILL HE DO WITH IT !-A bottle of "gin-wine" Scotch whiskey was left on our desk yesterday, to try. Think of that Good Templars-a whole bottle directly imported from Scotland, by PHILIPP SCHON-HALSS, of Reed Street. Well, as we never judulge in anything over and above a moderate and judicious draught of lager-say 50 glasses a day-how could we decide on the whiskey?-it was a key we never used.

Our friends DETRY and CALKING came in uring the afternoon; and to them we passed the bottle. DRURY sniffed it and called for a tumbler. Calkins-wet his lips with a drop-looked at a spot on the ceiling, and ronounced it "stunnin." DRURY poured four drops into a cup, tasted -- like Sahry Gamp, he "took it neat," and the only water in it was drawn from his eyes—he said "O gosh, aint that some!"

It was tried--we might say, it was tried out-the empty bottle we shall keep to cele-

NIGHT.—The preparations for this festival per or any of its party adherents. are now complete. The Cornet Band have spared no pains to insure its success. Besides the large Hall of the Albany, the Rotunda will be thrown open and refreshments served there. No doubt the Masquerade will be well worth seeing. But let those ice-boat project, with regard to which our who do not attend at least buy a ticket to help along our American Cornet Band.

WE DESIRE to call attention to the lecture sociation by Major Constable, upon India, this evening, at Albany Hall. The Lecture Committee of the Association are doing their best to bring to the city, this winter some of the most brilliant lecturers of the country. Let our readers bear in mind that there can be no disappointment as to this lecture, as Major Constable is already in the city

These are facts the City Authorities in their treatment of it. which can be shown clearly; and as the persons thus selected accepted a re-appointment, among whom was Mr. Donge, it is strange that any court, or jury, should decide that any one of them was entitled to any larger salary than had been provided by the Common Council. It should also be borne in mind that all the Assistants for 1858 were selected by WM. BECK, and that each of them well understood how much monthly pay he was to receive. The payments were made monthly by the issue of warrants on the Leasury, and receipted by the several policemen, as will appear by the books of the City Clerk. These ecripts operate as an acceptance, of the office under the salary provided by the Common Council, and consequently none of the Assitants of 1858, are entitled legally or equitably, to any further allowance.

The present Mayor, Mr. PAGE, on his ac cession to office in 1859, recommended the force to consist of twenty assistants, and that the pay be fixed at forty dollars per month. This rate will cause an expense of nine thousand six hundred dollars per year for twenty Police Assistants during the fiscal year A. ### A Letter from Mr. Vandenhoff. DETROIT, Nov. 21, '59.

To the Editor of the Milwaukee Sentinel: I have just had my attention drawn to a for not appearing in your city to read before night. Till I read that paragraph, I was not tickets. aware that I was expected on that evening, or any evening during this season.

A correspondence had taken place between myself and the Chairman of the Lecture Committee with a view to a change of the evening (Monday, 14th,) for which I was originally engaged, and which (for reasons connected with a severs illness under which I was suffering) I proposed to change to the 7th. This was not convenient to the Com- Real Estate, Money & Insurance Broner. mittee; and the Chairman wrote me that, under all the circumstances, perhaps it would be as well to let my engagement pass over for this season. But, crossing hat letter, I had in the intrim proposed Tuesday, the 15th, requesting that if that night were convenient he would accept it by

I received no reply to that proposition, and coupling this fact with the Chairman's form-Committee gave up the engagement for this season.

I slept at Joliet on Monday evening ; and had I believed I was expected in your city on Tuesday, I could, and would have been there, though I was far from well. I never break an engagement with a Lecture Committee. In this case the error is not on my side. Yours, respectfully.

Milwaukee and her Boudbolders. EDITOR SENTINED: - The recent meeting of Milwaukes City Bondholders, the proceedstring editorial, appears in the Milwaukee ings of which you published this morning, communication of our correspondent "A.", Daily News of yesterday, the 22d, and I seems to me a subject worthy our earnest atshould not notice it, but for the purpose of tention. The sentiments there expressed and showing that it was written, published and the feeling which prevailed should be very intended to dispurage the Administration of gratifying to us. They exonerate us, as a the City Covernment in 1859, and to make city, from all fault in the past failures to it appear that the present Administration most the interest and express themselves as under Mayor Page, has been so very particu- satisfied of the returning prosperity of our lar as to discharge the whole force of Po- city, and of our desire and ability to pay our debts. The state of feeling among our creditors is evidently such, that if we promptly MARK OF THE FRUITS OF THEFORM.—

Mr. Dadge, an expolicemen, has recovered a judgment against the city for about two hundred dollars, which is important, as it settles a principle of law, under which every policeman who held over under the administration of Mayor Prentiss, will be entitled to the same sum, in addition to what they were paid by the city. Which, in the agreement of the idea of regarding. the same sum, in addition to what they were paid by the city; which, in the aggregate, cannot fall much below four thousand dollars. This is wholly chargeable to Mayor Prentiss, who should, on the passage of the ordinance, to reduce the pay of policemen, have discharged the whole corps, as his successor, Mayor Page, did. in order to avoid that provision which prohibits the raising or reducing of the salaries of offices during their term of office.

It was an inexcusable blunder on the part of the Mayor, who is a lawyer by profession.

Beads at rest and I think our true line of of the Mayor, who is a lawyer by profession, and even if he were not, should have known better than to have omitted so plain a duty policy lies in taking steps to effect this change at once, to absolutely assume and provide for every dollar outstanding against the city and hereafter to be the keepers of our own credit. Now, what are the facts? At the time I entered upon the discharge of my duties as Mayor, in April, 1858, I found the Police force to consist of twenty-seven men, besides the Chief, Mr. Back, who were all under large pay. Soon after my inauguration, the Common Council saw fit to reduce the pay of the Police assistants to $400 per year, of the Police assistants to $400 per year, and regain our lost reputation, which is the except those who were to be paid a larger highest benefit that could now happen to us.

Loss of the Cunard Steamship Delta.

SACKYLLE, N. B., Nov. 22-9 P. M.
The schooner Victoria, which has arrived at Halifax, reports having passed within six hundred yards, yesterday, of a large steamer broken across the rocks oft Queensboro. The wreek is thus described: black hull, sharp bows, elliptic stern, only mizzen mast standing. It is impossible from the description to identify the vessel; supposed to be the Cunard packet Delta, running between Bermuda, Halifax and St. Johns. The Delta left Halifax on Saturday for Newfoundland; it is not likely that she had many passengers and not likely that she had many passengers and opes are entertained that all were saved.

Subsequent investigation proves that he had been struck on the head with a slung-shot and robbed. He died at 2 o'clock this afternoon. No clue to the murderer. An Important Move for the West.

We have cavalry, artillery and infantry sufficient to encounter a small army of sympathizers.

It is runnored that Gov. Wise has received a despatch from Gov. Chase, of Ohio, informing him that a large body of men, numbering from 600 to 1,000, are arming for a rescue, under John Brown, Jr., and will andonbtedly start for Charlestown Gov. A despatch was also received on Saturday from United States Marshal Johnson, of Olio, stating that from 600 to 1,000 men were fitting for the rescue of the prisoners, in that State, under John Brown, Jr., commander.

John G. Winslow, Agent for Sackett, Davis & Co., jewelers, New York, committed suicide last night, by shooting himself. Yesterday he entrusted a box of jewelry, valued at $3,300, to a colored porter, to carry to the otice of Draper, Tift & Co. The box not being delivered, Winslow supposed it to be stolen, and gave notice to the police, who were unable to recover it before the commission of the deed. He wrote letters to his mother at Providence, and to his employers. The box was recovered this morning, having been left by mistake at another lewer's. One of the singular movements connected One of the singular movements connected with the late Massachusetts election is the offer of Geo. P. Burnham, the State Liquor Agent, to give one thousand dollars to the poor of the district in which he lives, consisting of the towns of Melrose, Stoneham and South Reading, provided the people will choose him to the Legislature. Such an open, public attempt at bribery is seldom witnessed in New England. A Clear Case of Know-Nothlogism. LION SILVERMAN, the Democratic candidate for State Treasurer at the recent election, and the only German on the Democratic ticket, was more shabbily treated by Lis political friends than any caudidate that ever ran for public office in Wisconsin. He runs behind his ticket in all parts of the State, and is benten by ten, or twelve thousand majority. When Mr. Schuaz, two years ago, failed of an election to the Lieutenant Governorship by two, or three hundred votes, while Gov. RANDALL, who ran ahead of his ticket, was successful by 119 majority, the Sham Democratic organs pointed to the result as proof positive that the Republicans were Know Nothings. Now that Mr. Silverman runs thousands of votes behind his ticket, how do the same organs account for the circumstance? Here is the explanation offered by the Madison Patriot:
This gentleman, the Democratic nominese for State Treasurer, it seems, is infected by a large majority—some of the heavy German counties going against him where it was supposed he would get large majorities. This is owing more to a misfortune of fortuitous circumstances than to any fault of Mr. Situssaw. We heldere him to be a good, an honorable, and a fair buriness and mission. His general threes and character were known and understood by the Convention that nonlineated him, but that Convention never dreamed that his reported religious antecedents would be brought in question. But in this the misfortune consisted. He was charged with being a lew, and his Protestart and candon out a state of the property of the mission of the large transit of the mission of the large transit of the second of the product of explanation offered by the Madison Patriot:

According to the testimony of this Demoeratic witness, Mr. Silvenman was opposed and defeated by the Sham-Democracy on account of his religious opinions. These much professing Democrats voted against him because he was a Jew! Was there ever a clearer case of proscriptive Know-Nothing-

How else, indeed, is the Administration to be sustained? As to the "prominent applicant" the News tells of, who, in the hops of getting an office, has changed his coat, and now abuses Douglas, instead of denouncing Buchanan, it must be confessed that the News set a very had example in this regard, a year or more ago, which has no doubt had its demoralizing influence upon the party.

A SALT COMPANY is boring an artesian well at Grand Repids Michigan. The Eagle says the deeper they go the stronger is the brine they get. They have reached a depth of 260 feet, and the water that boiled up tasted quite as bring as that of the ocean, and looked, when running into and mingling with fresh water, like milk.

MUSICAL CONVENTION. - Yesterday convened at Janesville, the musical folks of the city and vicinity under the baton of GEO. E. Roor, of New York.

Monstrue Tonson.—It is amusing to see how entirely Senator Seward and Republican principles have become Monsieur Tonson to the Democratic Press. They find Seward and Sewardism everywhere, and the public will soon draw the inference that Sewardism is prepared by the North and will soon draw the inference that Sewardism is overspreading the country. North and South and East and West. The Washington Constitution the other day found Sewardism and Republicanism in Mr. Bates' piatform, and now the Richmond Enquirer has discovered it, where otherwise no one else would have expected it, in the columns of the Journal of Commerce. Monsight Tonson Seward will be the d-ath of the Democracy, he is so ultiquitous. Should not be at all surprised if he is at last found in the Presidential chair. New York Commercial Advertiser.

ENGLISH AND AMERICAN WORDS.—The different uses of words in England and in this country are interesting. Lumber, which with us is applied to sawn timber, means track in England. When we say boards, the Englishman says deals. We take boggage on journeys, the Englishmen only luggage.—Our ladies are fond of dry goods, their Englishers are equally devoted to haberdashery. The Yankee cries Go Ahead, the Britisher says All Right. The American travels "in the cars;" the Englishman "by the rail." The former sends a letter "by the mail," the latter "by the post." The one has a bureau in his bed chamber; the other only a chest of drawers.

Correspondence of the Boston Truceller.

PEKIN, GHINA, Aug. 9, 1859.

EDITORS OF THE TRAVELLER:—A little more than a year ago, as the Powhattan lay in the smooth waters of the Gulf of Pechele, amidst a powerful French and English fleet, which had just destroyed the forts at the mouth of the Peiho river, and then taken the French and English ministers up to Tientain, a jarge city of 400,000 inhabitants, seventy miles above the mouth of the river, where the American, Russian, French and English treaties were negotiated, I chanced to meet with a Russian work giving the most recent information about the great capital of this old empire, which I condensed and sent to your journal. How little did I dream then of of ever entering the city I described! of spending a pleasant fortnight in it, and living the most of ever entering the city I described! of spending a pleasant fortnight in it, and living the most of ever entering the city I described! of spending a pleasant fortnight in it, and living the most of ever entering the city I described! of spending a pleasant fortnight in it, and living the most of ever entering the city I described! of spending a pleasant fortnight in it, and living the most of ever entering the city I described! of spending a pleasant fortnight in it, and living the most of ever entering the city I described! of the lines, as the Grand Trunk to Portland.

I of course, most exultantly accepted the offer, and on the 20th of August, leaving the ship, in company with twenty others composing the suite, landed at a town called Pei-tung, a few miles distant from our anchorage, and containing a population of 25,000 inhabitants. It is situated on a river about the size of the size of the Merrimack, but not equal to the Peino, which is considerably larger than the Connection, and running for a long time parallel with the Peino, and only about ten miles distant from it, at length makes a sweep to the north-east.—The town is situated on the north bank of the river, starting from which our cavalcade of The town is situated on the norm bank of river, starting from which our cavalcade of numerous horsemen, and mounted mindarins, and other officials, with fifty carriages, and forty or fifty each drawn by two mules, and forty or fifty porters, carrying boxes, etc., besides half a dozen or more heavy wagons, containing our baggage, we preceded in a direction nearly west, crossing a country perfectly level, but in a great degree barren, the land being almost as level as the Gulf, and the soil of a large portion so saturated with saline matter; that the plants growing up here and there had the taste of salt when touched by the tongue.

the l'eiho, about eight miles above Tien-tsin, where we took junks, thirty-live in the whole and by the aid of wind and human bones and sinews (for the junks were all drawn by frackers, as they are called, just as boats are drawn by horses on the Ericand other canals) after five days sailing and tracking through the most charming country the eye ever fell the most charming country the eye ever fell upon, with scenes ever meeting our eyes on the banks and in the crowded villages of the rarest and most exciting interest, we reached the great city Tung-chow, at the head of navigation, and containing a population of 400,000 souls. The distance from Tung-chow to Pekin is 12 miles, the city being united with the river by a canal for the transportation of the immense quanties of salt and grain brought up by the junks, and also by a road for travelers and the carrying of lighter goods, which is built of large heam stones, or great size, and solid as masonry can make it.—From the wear and displacement of the stones, in frequent instances, the wheels of the carriages continually striking against the the carriages continually striking against the uneven portions of the stones with great vio-lence, or else sinking into holes which had

At length the mighty walls of this greatest of all cities in the world, as it is supposed, rose before us, and, as we entered the "Eastern Gate," its three millions of people seemed to be about us, or at least such are presentation of them as satisfied us without seeing their constituencies. I will not now attempt o describe what we saw on our route, all so to describe what we saw on our route, all so unlike to whatever we had seen before, nor the imperial city, and what we saw in it, and what we thought and did, and how we fared, as all these matters would require detail, and would fill sheets, to do justice to them or those who might read them. So much was there of rare and charming interest in our justice, that I could not hip often remark. interes of rare and charming interest in our journey, that I could not but often remark, when asked my opinion, that it was worth the Chinese and Yellow Seas, just to see what the Chinese and Yellow Seas, just to see what we saw on the banks of the Pelho. RANDAL'S MADORITY.—From present appearances, Randal's majority will be in the close neighborhood of E. W. Mr. Aitchison, who accompanied the suite of Mr. Ward as one of his interpretars, a scholar-like and most estimable man, whose family, as he tells me, resides in Farmingham, in your State, intended to remain in Pekin and commence the first Protestant mission in the capital and North China; and another English clergyman, whose acquaintance I happened to make, went up to Tung-chow, the city of 400,000 inhalitants of which I have spoken, and only twelve miles below Pekin, and spent two months there the last Winter, alone and only twelve miles below Pekin, and spent two months there the last Winter, alone and only twelve miles below Pekin, and spent two months there the last Winter, alone and only twelve miles below Pekin, and spent two months there the last Winter, alone and only twelve miles below Pekin, and spent two months there the last Winter, alone and only twelve miles below Pekin, and spent two months there the last Winter, alone and only twelve miles below Pekin, and spent two months there the last Winter, alone and only twelve miles below Pekin, and spent two months there the last Winter, alone and only twelve miles below Pekin, and spent two months there the last Winter, alone and only twelve miles below Pekin, and spent two months there the last Winter, alone and only twelve miles below Pekin, and spent two months there the last winter, in view of the exasperation of the Chinese in consequence of the late outrages; not deeply from the outrageous conductors.

My Lord Provost, I have referred to my connection with Yorkshire as the other great honor and great event in my life. I must and that when I was living among my own constituents it was a very painful reflection to consider—though I was received by them most affectionately and kindly, no doubt—that in some parts even of that counity, and in many parts of other counties in England, there prevailed a degree of corruption in the exercise of the elective franchise that almost made men doubt, not only whether the franchise should be extended, but half led them to doubt whether it was a of any use at all. It must be highly gratify, ing to think that this observation does not apply to Scotland. ("Hear," and cheers.) I There may have been in years past, one single exception or thereabouts, only proving the rule, but electoral corruption does not exist in Scotland. (Loud cheers.) Of some parts of England, of too many parts of it, it may be said—

Ding.-In Morris, Otsego County, on the 12th instant, Capt. DAN SMITH, in the 36th year of his age. The departure from life of a good citizen who has lived to a great ago, in the respect and esteem of his fellow men, deserves something more than the customary briefoldituary chronicle Captain Smith was been on the 80th day of may 1774, in Chepatchel, in the State of Rhode Island. He was cousin to the late Elisha Smith, Esq., of Norwich, and was descended, through his mother, in a direct line, from Elder Charles Brown, who was the first Baptist Clergyman of Rhode Island. He removed in early life on to a lot o land which he had purchased in Plymouth Chenango Co., still remembered as "Smith" Clearing. Selling that, he located in But-Clearing." Seiling that, he located in Butternuts, (itsego Co., near Gilbertsville, where he acquired, and himself chopped and cleared up, 200 acres of land. In 1809, he established himself on a newly purchased farm one mile South of the village of Morris (then Louisville), where for half a century and until his death he continued to reside.—

EPISCOPAL CHURCH—THANKSOIVING DAY.

The new B'shop (Protestant Episcopal) of Minnesota, entered this diocese on Thursday last, the 10th inst., landing at Wabashaw, where he held services with the view of forming a Missionary Station. Here he was joined by the Rev. Mr. Weller, of Red Wing, and came on board the Keokuk on the night of Friday, reaching this city at dawn on Saturday morning last.

In the full vigor of "a yet youthful maturity," he has been most heartily welcomed to the noble field of work and achievement, (and endurance,) opening before him in our

The services, as arranged by the two Rectors, were—Sermon by the Bishop in the morning at St. Paul's, (Dr. Patterson's) in the afternoon at Christ Church, (Dr. Van Ingen's,) and in the evening a joint gathering of the two parishes at St. Paul's, at which an interesting discourse was delivered by Dr. Van Ingen relating to the proceedings of the late General Convention, which was followed by brief and very happy remarks from the Bishop.

On Monday evening the Rev. Dr. Patterson threw open his spacious dwelling for the reception of all who might desire to pay their respects to the Bishop, and the Rectors of

MODERN VS. ANCIENT CHIVALRY. [CONCLEDED.]

"Is there no way of opening communication with her," he asked of the old coast—guard man.

"Why ye see, sir, we have sent to Bilford for Manby's rockets; but she must break up before they come."

"How far is it to Bilford?"

"Better than seven mile, your honor."
"If we could get a rope to them, we might save the orew. "Every one of them, your honor; but it ain't possible."
I think a man might swim out."

"The first wave might dash him to pieces against the cliff."
"What depth of water below?"
"What depth of water below?" "The cliff goes down like a wall, forty fathom, at least."

"The deeper the better. What distance to the water?" "A good fifty feet."
"Well, I have dived off the main yard of the Chesapeake. Now listen to me. Have you got some light, strong rope?"

"As much as you like."
"Well, take a double coil round my chest, and do you take care to pay it out fast enough as I draw upon it?'
"You won't draw much after the first plunge; it will be the same thing as suicide, every bit."

every lift."
"Well, we shall see. There's no time to be lost; lend me a knife." And in an instant he whipped off his boots, hat, and pea-jacket, then with the knife he cut off the sleeves and passed the rope through them, that it might chafe him less.
The eyes of the old boatman brightened.
There was evidently a method in his madness. You are a very good swimmer, I suppose,

"I have dived through the surf at Nuku-"I never knew a white man that could do that."

Tyrawley smiled.

"But whatever you do," he said, "mind and let me have plenty of rope. Now out of the way, my friends, and let me have a clear He walked slowly to the edge of the cliff, looked over to see how much the rock shelv-ed outwards; then returned, looked to see that there was plenty of rope for him to carry out, then took a short run, and leaped as if from the springing-board of a plunging-bath. He touched the water full five-and-twenty feet from the edge of the cliff. Down into its dark depths he went, like a plummet, but soon to rise again. As he reached the surface, he saw the crest of a mighty wave a few yards in front of him—the wave facturers) the complete stock of L. S. BARNUM, who wastormerly prescrictor of the rience of the Pacific stands in good stead.—

For two moments he draws breath, then, ere it reaches him, he dives below its centre.—
The water dashes against the cliff but the swimmer rises far beyond it. A faint choer rises from the shore as they feel him draw upon the rope. The waves follow in sucsession, and he dives again and again, rising like an otter to take breath, making very steadily onward, though more below the water than above it.
We must now turn to the ship. The waves have made a clean breach over her bows. The crew are crowded upon the stern.

They hold on to the bulwarks, and await the end, for no boat can live in such a sea.—Suddenly she is halled from the waters.— Suddenly she is halled from the waters.—
"Ship ahoy!" shouts a loud, clear voice, which makes itself heard above the storm.
"Throw me a rope or a bnoy!" The lifebuoy was still hauging in its accustomed place by the mainmast. The captain almost mechanically takes it down, and, with welldirected aim, throws it within a yard or two board. "Come on board, sir," he says to the cap-*Come on board, sir," he says to the captain, pulling one of his wet curls, professionally. The captain appeared to be regarding him as a visitor from the lower world; so turning to the crew, he lifted up the rope he had brought from the shore. Then, for the first time, the object of his mission flashed upon their minds, and a desperate cheer broke from all hands, instantly re-echoed from the shore. Then a strong cable is attached to the small rope and drawn on beard—then a second—and the communication is somplete. But no time is to be lost for the stern shows signs of breaking up, and there complete. But notime is to be lost for the stern shows signs of breaking up, and there is a lady passenger. Whilst the captain is planning a sort of chair in which she might be removed, Tyrawley lifts her up on his left arm, steadies himself by his right on the upper rope, and walks along the lower as if he had been a rope dancer. He is the first on shore, for no sailor would leave till the lady was safe. But they soon follow and in five minutes the ship was clear—five minutes more, and no trace of her is left.

just arrived with blankets and brandy. Him Tyrawley avoids; and thinking he can be of no further use, he betakes himself across the country once more, and, by the aid of the friendly elm, regains his chamber without observation.

The lady, whem Tyrawley had deposited in a cottage, with a strong recommendation that she should go to sleep immediately, was soon carried off in triumph by Mr. Ravelstoke to the Hall, and welcomed by Lady Grace at half-past three in the morning.— There were very few of the guests who slept undisturbed that night. The unusual noise in the house aroused everybody, and many excursions were made in unfinished costume to endeavor to ascertain what was going on excursions were made in unmissed costains to endeavor to ascertain what was going on. The excitement culminated when the miscellaneous assemblage who had conducted the captain and some of the crew to the Hall, after being well-supplied with ale and stronger liquids, conceived that it would be the correct thing to give three cheers at the hour of half next five half past live.

Breakfast that morning was a desultory meal. People finished, and talked about the wreck, and began again. It seemed quite impossible to obtain anything like an accurate account of what had taken place. At last the captain appeared, and, though almost overwhelmed by the multiplicity of questions, nevertheless, between the intervals of broiled ham and collee, he managed vals of broised ham and cones, he managed to clucidate matters a little.

Then came the question—'who was it who swam out to the vessel?'' Tyrawley had only been at Ravelstoke a few days, and was a strauger in the neighborhood. None of the servants had reached the coast till it was all over, so there had been no one to re-I scarcely saw him," said the captain, cognize him.

"I scarcely saw him," said the captain,
"but he was a dark, tallish man, with a great deal of beard."

"Was he a gentleman?" asked Miss Constance Baynton, who had been taking a deep interest in the whole affair.

"Well, d'ye see, Miss, I can't exactly say, for he hadn't much on; but, if he isn't, he'd make a good one, that I'll go bail for. He's the coolest hand I ever saw. Stay, now I think of it, I shouldn't wonder if he was a naval man, for he pulled his fore-lock, halflanghing like, and said, 'Come on board, sir,' to me, when we pulled him up.

"Perhaps it was Rutherford," said Mr.
Ravelstoke, naming a lieutenant in the navy,
"he is tall and dark."

"And he has been letting his moustache grow, since he came on shore," observed a young lady.

stopping in the house, for the door was fast-ened till the people came down to tell you of the wreck."

At this moment-half past ten A. M .- Mr. Tyrawley walked into the breakfast room— He was got up, if possible, more elaborately than usual.

TO HOUSERDEPERS.

"Now, here's a gentleman, captain, Mr. Tyrawley, who has been all over the world, and met with some strange adventures. I'll be bound he never saw augthing to equal the locker would have held us all. Begging your pardon. Miss, apologizing to Constance. The captain had already repeated the story a number of times, and was anxious to finish his breakfast. So Miss Constance gave it all for the benefit of Mr. Tyrawley, dressed in Tyrawley made no observation upon her recital, but took a third egg.

'Well, Mr. Tyrawley,' said she, at last, 'what do you think of the man who swam out to the wreck ?" "Why, I think, Miss Baynton-I think,"

"Five minutes more, sir, and Davy Jones"

he said, hesitating, "that he must have got very wet. And I sincerely hope he won't catch cold." There was a general laugh at this, in which the captain joined; but it is to be feared that Miss Constance stamped her pretty little fant under the table under the table Tyrawley turned and began to talk to Miss Mellish, who was sitting on his right.
As he was speaking, the door on his left opened, and Lady Grace Ravelstoke entered with the lady passenger. The lady heard him speak, and there are some voices which a woman passer forcets.

a woman never forgets, and the dangerous journey over the rope had not passed in silence.

She kaid her hand upon his arm, and said,

'Oh, sir, how can I thank you?'

Tyrawley rose, as in duty bound, saying,

'Do not speak of it; I did not know when I came off, that I was to have the pleasure of assisting you. But the astenishment of the captain was but the satonishment of the captain was beautiful to beheld.

"Why, you don't mean to say—. Well, I never; dash my wig-well, I'm—— Here, shak-hands, sir, will you!" And he stretched across the table a brawny hand, not much smaller than a shoulder of mution. The grip with which Tyrawley met his, seemed to do a great deal more to convince him of his identity, than the lady's recognition of their preserver. tion of their preserver.

The day was as wet as the preceding. Half an hour after breakfast, Mr. Tyrawley lounged into the back drawing-room. There sat Miss Constance Baynton, and, by the singular coincidence which favors lovers or historians. she sat alone.

Now Constance had made up her mind that she was bound to apologise to Mr. Ty; rawley for her rude speeches of yesterday; she had also decided that she would compliment him on his gallant conduct.

She had, in fact, arranged a neat, quiet, cold, formal, appropriate form of words, in which she would give her views expression.

And how do you think she delivered them?

She got up, said "O, Mr. Tyrawley!" and lurst into tears. If a proud woman's pride is a shield to thee, O, man, as well as to her, against the arrows of love, remember that if ever she throws it away-after she has compelled you to acknowledge its value—you are both left utterly defenseless.

Frederick Tyrawley capitulated at once.—

They are to be married this month. And if Mr. Tyrawley does not, at some future time, achieve a reputation which no mystery shall cloud, it will not be Mrs. Tyrawley's fault.
